The existence of matter is a continuous process of creating impressions on time-space. Evolution and transformation of matter is reflective action of cause and effect relationship among surrounding elements. We are trying to understand the idea of impression and reflection as a tool to observe the matter situated around, the clash among matters creates vibration where the duration and distance from observer on listener experience the same action in variable mode of understanding that expression. Situated in Howrah, India we are experimenting with the impression- reflection -vibration relationship to understand durational moving collision in recorded form as visual and sound expression.
